

The National Summit of Healthcare Justice

is a one-of-a-kind event sponsored by many of the major safety-net clinician organizations from across the United States. The two-day event is expected to attract clinicians and advocates from all over the country who will come together to celebrate, acknowledge and highlight the work frontline clinicians do to serve disenfranchised populations in need of basic healthcare in our country. The conference provides an opportunity for clinicians and others to explore cutting edge solutions and to be a part of the vital efforts to make quality health care for the underserved a reality.

Eduardo J. Sanchez, M.D., M.P.H. serves as Vice President and Chief Medical Officer for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Texas. Prior to this, he was the Director of the Institute for Health Policy at The University of Texas (UT) School of Public Health.

Dr. Sanchez served as Commissioner of the Texas Department of State Health Services from 2004–2006 and the Texas Department of Health from 2001–2004.

Ron J. Anderson, MD
President and Chief Executive Officer
Parkland Health & Hospital System

Dr. Ron J. Anderson began his career caring for many patients each day. Now, he oversees the care for thousands of patients a day. However, milestones in career clearly illustrate that he has impacted the health care of millions. Dr. Anderson is president and chief executive officer of Parkland Health & Hospital System, one of the largest public hospitals in the U.S.

Winston F. Wong, MD, MS
Medical Director, Community Benefit, and Director, Disparities Improvement and Quality Initiatives, Kaiser Permanente

Dr. Wong serves as Medical Director, Community Benefit, Kaiser Permanente, the nation's largest non-profit health care provider. Dr. Wong is responsible for developing partnerships with communities and organizations in advancing population management and evidence-based medicine, with a particular emphasis on safety-net providers and the elimination of health disparities. As an officer of the Commissioned Corps of the U.S. Public Health Service from 1993 – 2003, Dr. Wong was awarded the Outstanding Service Medal.

Margaret Flowers, MD
Congressional Fellow of Physicians for a National Health Program

Dr. Margaret Flowers is a Maryland pediatrician with experience as a hospitalist at a rural hospital and in private practice. She is currently the Congressional Fellow of Physicians for a National Health Program, working on single-payer health care reform full time. In addition to her activity with PNHP, an organization of 17,000 doctors who support single-payer national health insurance, she is a member of Healthcare-Now! of Maryland and a co-founder of the Conversation Coalition for Health Care Reform.

Vice Admiral Richard H. Carmona, MD, MPH
Seventeenth Surgeon General of the United States
Commander, USPHS Commissioned Corps
U.S. Department of Health and Human Services

Vice Admiral Richard H. Carmona was sworn in as the 17th Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service on August 5, 2002. Dr. Carmona has worked in various positions in the medical field including paramedic, registered nurse and physician. Dr. Carmona completed a surgical residency at the University of California, San Francisco, and a National Institutes of Health-sponsored fellowship in trauma, burns and critical care.

M. Joycelyn Elders, MD
Fifteenth Surgeon General of the United States

Joycelyn Elders, the first person in the state of Arkansas to become board certified in pediatric endocrinology, was the sixteenth Surgeon General of the United States, the first African American and only the second woman to head the U.S. Public Health Service. Long an outspoken advocate of public health, Elders was appointed Surgeon General by President Clinton in 1993. Dr. Elders left office in 1994 and in 1995 she returned to the University of Arkansas as a faculty researcher and professor of pediatric endocrinology at the Arkansas Children's Hospital.

C. Everett Koop, MD, ScD
Thirteenth Surgeon General of the United States

In his tenure as Surgeon General, Dr. Koop proved to be an outspoken advocate on public health issues. The problem of tobacco was one that he attacked particularly vigorously, calling for "A Smoke-Free Society by the Year 2000." The 1986

Surgeon General's report on the dangers of passive smoking was also an important milestone in the fight against smoking. Additionally, as the Nation began to recognize AIDS as a new and deadly disease, Koop eventually became the chief Federal spokesperson on AIDS.

Elaine S. Scott, RN, PhD, NE-BC
Assistant Professor and Director of the Nursing Leadership Concentration, East Carolina University School of Nursing

Dr. Elaine Scott is the Director of the Nursing Leadership Program at East Carolina University where she is actively engaged in the development of the newest generation of clinical leaders. Dr. Scott has written and lectured on the role of clinician leadership within the healthcare setting. Her work emphasizes the notion that to redesign health care services for effectiveness and efficiency and to improve patient safety and outcomes, organizations must redefine leadership in ways that promote the development of innovations.

Jack Geiger, MD, MSci, ScD
Arthur C. Logan Professor Emeritus of Community Medicine at the City University of New York Medical School and Visiting Professor of Epidemiology at the Columbia-Mailman School of Public Health

Most of Dr. Geiger's professional career has focused on the problems of health and poverty, and he was a leader in the development of community health centers in the United States. For this work he has received several awards, including the first annual Rosenhaus Foundation Award for excellence from the American Public Health Association and the Distinguished Public Service Award from the National Association of Community Health Centers. He is the author of over sixty articles and book chapters on the social aspects of public health, primary health care, medical ethics, and crisis relocation planning for nuclear war.

Kimberlydawn Wisdom, MD, MS
Vice President of Community Health Education and Wellness & Michigan's First Surgeon General

Dr. Kimberlydawn Wisdom is a board-certified Emergency Medicine Physician who practiced for 20 years at the Henry Ford Health System in Detroit, Michigan. She also founded and directed both the Institute of Multicultural Health at Henry Ford Health System and a National Minority Quality Forum award-winning community-based health screening initiative entitled "AIMHI" (African American Initiative for Male Health Improvement) focused on improving the health of those disproportionately affected by poor health outcomes – African American men.

Ana M. Viamonte Ros, MD, MPH
Florida's State Surgeon General

Florida's first State Surgeon General and the first woman and Cuban American to serve as head of the Department. She is committed to making the health care system more user-friendly, promoting healthy habits among Florida's youth, preparing the state for natural and man-made disasters, reducing health disparities, and leading Floridians to better health by example.
